

As the Refugee Convention marks 75 years, WFP stands with UNHCR and reaffirms that refugees' immediate humanitarian and protection needs are a global responsibility. Even as the world rightly advances inclusion, self-reliance and durable solutions, joint efforts and commitments are essential to sustain attention and resources to save lives.

Each year WFP and UNHCR work together to provide life-saving support to millions of refugees. We share a commitment to humanitarian principles – protecting vulnerable populations, strengthening their food security, and supporting sustainable solutions that enable refugees to build lives for themselves, their families, and the communities they live in.

The Refugee Convention is a symbol of solidarity and humanity. WFP is committed to working with UNHCR, governments, partners, and global citizens to face the risks, implement solutions, and support refugee food security.
